

6 Best Indian Destinations For Solo Travel

Places Covered :

Description

Being alone not always is a definition of loneliness. Many times it comes up as a blessing. You can find your true self, only when you are alone. Wandering through the hills, one night stay in the camp near the river, exploring the deserts. These things in their own selves lead one towards the path of self-introspection. And the country like India filled with the diversity and is a complete retreat giving you a feeling of contentment within you. There are many spaces but here we will discuss best destinations in India for solo trip to experience such ecstasy.

Solo travel is suitable for everyone; you meet different people with different background. It gives you a chance to enhance your social skills and circles too.

With the time, solo traveling concept is getting prominent and people are opting this concept of exploring. This concept is boosting the travel industry, offering best services to you. You can experience many beautiful places as per of your choice either a divine tour of pilgrimage, wildlife safari, cultural and architectural heritage and many more. With hill station tour you come closer to the nature. The mountains, beaches, ancient temples, and forts are best spaces for the solo traveling.

6 best destinations in India for solo trip you can opt for

Pondicherry

Image Courtesy: Google Images

Pondicherry is located in the southern part of India. It is also known as Puducherry, one of the seven Union Territories that India have. A perfect destination for the solo traveling. This space is embracing and cherishing two different traditions and cultures of India and French. Pondicherry had once been the colony of French. With the independence it became an inseparable part of India. But both of the culture and tradition found spaces for each other in their hearts and hence since then living together peacefully. The architectural tour of Pondicherry will define you the meaning of ecstasy. That is why comes under the list of best destinations in India for solo trip.

While your visit here, you can see the White Town, having the mustard-yellow colonial structures. Here you can enjoy in the Karaikal Beach and Paradise Beach. These are two of the renowned beaches, prominently known for their water sports activities. Such as kayaking, jet skiing, canoeing and backwater sailing. You can too experience the enthralling Scuba diving in Puducherry.

Varkala

Varkala - best destinations in India for solo trip - bluberryholidays.com

Image not found or type unknown

Image Courtesy: Google Images

Coastal towns are best spaces to enjoy the solo traveling. They offer alluring beaches, adventurous boat rides, and balmy sunshine surroundings. Varkala is a coastal town that is located in the southern part of India, specifically in the city of Kerala. That is also known as the 'Home of God'. This space is situated near the shore of Arabian Sea. Varkala is famous for its utter best hospitality, serving sumptuous seafood. If you are a seafood lover, you can enjoy the cuisine without sharing it with any one. This is one of many benefits of solo trip. Here, you can also feel the spiritual essence when you visit the Kerala's saint Sree Narayana Guru. Varkala has the most pristine beaches, lush green alluring hills, beautiful and exquisite lakes, ancient forts, enticing lighthouses, magnificent natural fisheries and springs. These are all when combined together makes this place as one of the best Indian destinations for solo travel.

The most distinguished beach the Varkala beach, which is also, called Papanasam Beach. It is a perfect space if you want to relax and have a sunbathe.

Hampi

Image Courtesy: Google Images

Hampi is the most distinguished city of India. With a vast and glorious history of ancient India. It is declared as the UNESCO World Heritage Site situated near the pious river of Tungabhadra. Hampi is a every traveller's delight. This historical space, is surrounded by 500 ancient monuments. In this solo travelling you can explore the bustling street markets. If you want to experience the spiritual whiff then you surely would love to explore the beautiful temples. The famous temples located in Hampi are Hampi Vittala, and Temple Lotus Palace , and Virupaksha temple.

Hampi was once the capital of the distinguished Vijayanagar empire around 1500 CE. As per the archaeological findings, it was concluded and proved that Hampi was the second-largest city in the world. If you want to have a gorgeous glimpses of the whole city. Then you have to climb the terrain, which are surrounded by boulders of different sizes. You can experience the architectural and historical remnants of ancient edifices.

The whole journey of Hampi makes everyone marvelled with the intricate carvings. The thing that intrigues is the formations of rocks and the stone boulders. The scenic landscape and the tranquil environment are the must to explore spaces if you are among the nature lovers. Hampi is an enticing place for solo travelling in India. However, you should follow the rules of Covid. Keeping yourself and others safe while on your journey to best destinations in India for solo trip.

Spiti Valley

Image Courtesy: Google Images

Known as the twin cousin of Ladakh. This beautiful space is located in the land of gods that is Himachal Pradesh. It is the lesser-visited place and hence it becomes more exciting to visit this beautiful space. Spiti Valley is known to be as the treasure trove of lush green exquisite landscapes. And also the enthralling wilderness. The snow blanketing mountains of Spiti gives eyes the view of true paradise. The beautiful forests are enthralling beauty. The scenic lakes and valleys, picturesque hamlets are best part of this solo journey. The magnificent and distinguished Buddhist monasteries are among the must to be explored spaces in India. This space offers the tourists adventurous activities like trekking, camping, and mountain biking. The tranquil beauty of Spiti offers you an environment in which you can relax. And enjoy the balmy season, inhaling the fresh air and exploring its beauty.

The people of the Spiti use to be very friendly and welcoming. There you will find them always willing to lend a helping hand to the visitors. Since this space do not have many hotels or guesthouses in the area. These big-hearted people allow staying with them. So it becomes your duty to do not spoil their city with the bad habits of metro cities.

Rishikesh

Image Courtesy: Google Images

Rishikesh is known spiritually and mythologically to be the door of enlightenment. It is located in the lap of great Himalayas in the state of Uttarakhand, situated in the northern part of India. The scenic beauty of the Himalayas witnesses thousand of tourists across the world. Due to its divine significance.

The sacred and distinguished river, Ganges, having the magnificent importance in Hindu religion. It is utterly one of the best destinations in India for solo trip. The solo activities those you can enjoy in Rishikesh are river rafting, bungee jumping, and camping. If you are an adventure freak then you can go for the mountain biking, flying fox, cliff jumping and trekking. In addition to these activities you can too experience the body surfing, rappelling, kayaking, paragliding.

The self-introspection leads to the rejuvenation of the body, mind and soul. For the spiritual retreat you can go for Ayurvedic massages, yoga and meditation. Many ashrams and centres in Rishikesh filled with the air of divinity. Being here you should attend the ecstatic Ganga Aarti and experience the vibrant Hindu culture.

Book Uttarakhand Tour Packages and explore the mystic Rishikesh!!

Rajasthan

Image Courtesy: Google Images

Rajasthan is a royal state having the vast history of bravery and valour. The cultural and architectural heritage tour of Rajasthan introduces you to the royal forts. And also to the supreme sacrifice made by the kings to save mother India from the brutal invasion attacks. This glorious state of Rajasthan is popularly known as the 'Land of Kings'. This state tells you the story of our gracious history with the art, culture and architecture. Rajasthan is the land of brave and fearless Rajputs. They have sacrificed their lives to save Hindus from the brutal Mughals. Rajasthan is filled with an abundance of magnificent temples and distinguished forts. The royal palaces and lakes with their scientifically made water reservoir are still a talk of amaze. The splendour Rajasthan is still can be heard and seen with its rich culture and traditions. Which is featuring lively fairs and colourful festivals. The traditional dance, folk music and enthralling art and handicrafts are famous all over the world. People of Rajasthan are known to be the most kind. Their warm hospitality gives you the feeling of being at home. And as a solo traveller you will fall in love with Rajasthan. The state is safe, the sumptuous food makes a footprint in your heart.

Book your tickets and explore these best destinations in India for solo travel!!

Itinerary

Terms & Conditions
